

The Listening Ear

When you're at your lowest
And you don't know what to do
Just let me take you by the hand
And let us talk things through

I'm here to talk you through your worries

And see what they reveal
And help you find an answer
That I hope will help you heal

I'll talk you through your problems

Whether you're a she or he
And listen with attentiveness
For that's a vital key

I promise not to judge you

For that is not my role
But hope you find an inner peace
To ease your troubled soul

A problem shared is one that's halved

Unburdening your mind
I'll try to show you ways
To leave your sadness far behind

It helps to talk to someone
When we need a helping hand
Someone who's supportive, who can really understand

So please don't feel you're on your own
For you I am always here
Where you will find the greatest comfort
From the listening ear.

By Elizabeth